TRY US ON OUR RECORD.

Facts are so much better than fancies, works are so much better than words, that there ought to be little wonder at the steady progress of the Republican party in the face of its own internal difficulties. The absence of all coherence in the modern Democracy is not less the fruit of its own want of genuine principles than of the repeated successes of its antagonist. There are two classes embarrassed by this state of things; first, those in our own ranks who allow personal feeling to control their actions; second, those on the adverse side, who expect to win through our dissensions. While the Republicans stand firm, prove their fidelity to their faith, and fulfil their pledges, they can afford to rest upon the results as upon a rock, indulging a due forbearance to their disaffected associates, and defying the machinations of their adversaries. Our strength is not simply in numbers and majorities, but in our general ability for government and in the unassailable integrity of our record. We do not invoke support by promises of what we shall do. We demand it by the fair showing of what we have done. Perhaps nothing so vindicates Republican policy and so proves Republican power as the concessions of the Democrats. The best of them yield to the new amendments of the Constitution. The worst of them dare no longer attack the systematic reduction of the national debt. The best of them frankly yield to the abolition of slavery. The worst of them dare not ask for its restoration. All of them, without exception, are dumbfounded before the fact that the present national currency is the most perfect ever known in the United States. None of them, save perhaps the foreigners resident in New York, who are interested only in the profits upon imports, make free trade an issue, even in the midst of their clamor for what they call "revenue reform." Never before has a pracical Indian policy been achieved by any Administration excepting that of President Grant. Never before have our national securities stood so high among all the nations. The recent placting of a stupendous loan upon the markets of Europe at a reduced rate of interest, is in itself a great Republican victory. The treaty with Great Britain removed all cause of difference with that great power, paved the way to increased and increasing immigration and trade, to a revival of our shipping interest, closed half a century of dispute and threatened war, and opened an endless future of progress and peace. These are the facts of history; these are the works of the Republican party.

They sink into and stay in all men's minds; they affect alike the popular instinct and the popular interest; they appeal to the judgment and the pockets of men; they make it impossible to organize a successful opposition; they discourage Republican faction; they overshadow the poor business of individual calumny; they uplift the people from the consideration of small charges against President Grant to a careful appreciation of his grand military and civic achievements. Even honest Democrats will turn away from an accusation which springs from disappointment, and will candidly honor the record of promises ratified and reforms accomplished.

Two months ago no future event was more probable than the success of the Democratic party in the election of October in Pennsylvania. That prospect has now been changed, and the Republicans are likely to carry the State by a sufficient if not a large majority. * * * The question has been settled in Pa., by the riot of July 12 in New York city and the circumstances which preceded and attended that event. These things have excited a feeling among the people of the State which no party organization can withstand. The conduct of the Tammany managers in this city on that memorable occasion has lost Pennsylvania to the Democracy.—Press.

SIMON CANT YOU SWEAR TO IT? YES SIR, WHAT IS IT?

In our statement on the county finances we referred to S. S. Wolf, county Treasurer as a person who should know that the facts we had taken from the Auditors report were correct, and that our remarks on the same were warranted by that statement. But it appears by the Watchman of the 25th of August, that Treasurer Wolf has signed his name to a paper which, in charity to him, he did not read, nor understand the drift of the special plea in favor of the Commissioners and defaulting collectors and as a salvo for the Commissioners, says the assessments are too low that "six mills is not an exhorbitant rate of taxation" and then gives his sage reason that "This cannot be considered oppressive taxation for a large and wealthy county like old Centre."

This is the excuse of Treasurer Wolf, for the Commissioners levying the six mills tax. But hear him again. He says: "The careful reader will observe by glancing over his list of "defaulting collectors" that about $30,000 of the above amount is charged to collectors for the year 1870."

Let us sift Simon S. Wolf's financial veracity. He as Treasurer settled his account with the Commissioners and Auditors, from the second of January, 1870 to the second of January, 1871, and we find him claiming a credit for outstanding taxes for the year 1869 and previous years of.....$11,740,84.

On the relief fund

By amount outstanding	$ 1,862 20
Militia Fund	859 22
State and special state taxes due the Commonwealth	1,752 47
Making	$16,114 73

We also find that he paid

On account of the county	$188 44
On the Militia fund	38 06
Making	$226 50

This is smart in one of the Court House Ring holding the money strings. Here we find Treasurer Wolf on last January claiming credit for uncollected taxes due in 1869 and previous years, $16,114 73.

By his own showing, and his account as settled, this amount of outstanding taxes in the hands of the defaulting collectors has nothing to do with, and is not included in the uncollected taxes of 1870.

Why were not these defaulting collectors from 1864 to 1870, compelled to pay over the collected taxes? And why did not Treasurer S. S. Wolf, perform his duty according to law against these defaulting collectors of 1869 and previous years? Can he give the reason as the Commissioners claim that there is in the hands of the collectors sufficient to pay off the county indebtedness and leave a surplus?

Is it because the chairman of the Democratic County Committee, D. F. Fortney, Esq., was a collector for the year 1869, and not for the year 1870, that he is published as a defaulting collector of the Borough of Bellefonte? We have nothing personal against either S. S. Wolf, P. G. Meek or D. F. Fortney. This we sincerely declare. But when Meek or Wolf or Fortney, all public men, set themselves up as models of virtue and honesty, they should be consistant and not call their neighbor and friend a liar when he only seeks the peoples good and not his own. Taxpayers of Centre, we continue to ask you why you consent to pay a six mills tax when Meek and company declare the county to be out of debt? If you take pleasure in being swindled; if you delight in paying exhorbitant taxes when your own sworn officers confess that the county is out of debt; if it is a peculiar pleasure to you, to pay these exhorbitant taxes and at the same time love, honor and respect Treasurer Wolf and P. G. Meek, just simply because they are smart and can pull the wool over your eyes, why then, we say we have no objections and you can pay on and pay ever, while the men who rob you laugh in their sleeves and call you, not silly, but clever fellows. Six mills on the dollar, in our humble opinion, is paying too much for the honor of being a latter day Democrat.

Edward Bayer, Esq., Horton, Kings Co., N. S., writes that an astonishing cure has been effected on his daughter by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. The whole spine became diseased, she lost the use of her limbs, and her back was rounded up like a bow, in consequence of taking cold after having been innoculated for the kine pock. She is now well.

MORE ABOUT THE COUNTY TAXES MISMANAGEMENT, &C.

In the REPUBLICAN dated August 23rd, just two weeks since, we published an article on the mismanagement of the county finances, by the county commissioners in which we made the following statements:

"They have Attorneys as we see by the Auditors report and the fees paid them. Then why not collect the peoples money held by these defaulting collectors from 1864 to 1871? Does this neglect, prove the county commissioners "skillful managers of the financial affairs of the county?

Let the tax-payers look at the Auditors report as published in the Watchman of the 24th of February, 1871 under the head of "Liabilities" and they will find it thus stated:

Amount of exonerations and per centage on uncollected taxes	$ 5,825 70
County Bonds	10,000 00
Per Notes	16,100 00
County orders outstanding	2,780 35
Bills and notes unpaid	2,000 00
Am't paid A. C. Geary late treasurer	2,500 00
County indebtedness	$39,206 65

Here the Commissioners charge the county with $5,825,70 on uncollected taxes and in favor of the defaulting collectors, who have the money in their pockets, instead of having paid it over to the County Treasurer, S. S. Wolf, Esq And we further assert that the county commissioners do not charge these defaulting collectors with interest to meet the interest paid by the county on their indebtedness. These defaulting collectors pay but six per cent. interest to the county, while the commissioners to let them slip, are paying 12 per cent. for money borrowed from Maj. Wm. F. Reynolds & Co., and others."

The taxpayers of the county will see that this is but a plain honest statement and the figures taken from the Report of the County Auditors and Commissioners as published in the Watchman February 24th, 1871.

In connection with this report they published a list of the defaulting collectors, numbering 38 from 1864 to the close of the year 1870, and containing the names of 28 defaulters for 1870. But three of these defaulting collectors for 1869 and previous years were marked by an *—which indicated they had "paid up since settlement."

Martin Brumgard of Walker township, whose name was published in the Watchman as a defaulter for 1869 to the amount of $169,94, came to our office last week being very much aggrieved and stated that he felt himself injured because the amount which the Commissioners claimed off him was nearly all due him as exonerations and per centage. Will S. S. Wolf call this good financeering? According to his showing, it requires the whole amount due the county from defaulting collectors to pay off the county debt and leave a balance in the Treasury of a little over $5,000. These defaulters who have not paid up number in all about 63. Now if each of these 63 collectors, have, like Mr. Brumgard nearly $169,94 due them as exonerations and per centage, then how does Mr. Wolf and his "butty" Mr. Meek, figure the county out of debt?

The tax-payers can multiply for themselves $169 by 63. In many instances the per centage and exonerations are much larger than in the case of Mr. Brumgard. Is S. S. Wolf, not as smart as we give him credit for being, or is he, regardless of truth, determined, for the sake of the "Ring" and party politics, to pull the wool over the eyes of the taxpayers of the county in order that the Ring may continue to collect the six mills tax and grow fat off the labor of the honest farmer?

Treasurer Wolf asserts that the Comsioners are not borrowing money at 12 per cent. Will he dare deny that almost the first act of his, after coming into office, was to borrow, or rather have a note of over $13,000 discounted at the Banking House of Maj. Wm. F. Reynolds & Co., at 11 or 12 per cent? Treasurer Wolf says our statements of two weeks since were not true. Taxpayers of Centre, read the above and then in the classic language of Hon. Peter G. Meek, ask yourselves the question "Who is a liar?"

Two Decades Showing the Difference in the Condition of the State for Ten Years under Democratic Rule and Ten Years under Republican Management.

The Democrats had an almost unbroken rule in Pennsylvania from 1850 to 1860, and the Republicans have been in power most of the time from 1860 to 1871. The record made by these parties, within those periods, in the management of the finances of the State, is a fair test by which to try them.

The State debt on the 1st of December, 1850, and on the same date of the ten years following, is given in the following table, compiled from the annual reports of the Auditor General:

State debt Dec. 1,	1850	$40,775,485 42
" "	1851	40,114,236 39
" "	1852	41,524,875 37
" "	1853	40,566,279 54
" "	1854	40,613,160 07
" "	1855	40,196,994 22
" "	1856	40,117,835 25
" "	1857	39 881,738 22
" "	1858	39,488,243 67
" "	1859	38,638,961 07
" "	1860	37,969,847 50

It will be seen from this table that the State debt remained above forty millions—some years increasing and in others decreasing slowly—until 1856, when the Democratic ascendancy began to be shaken. The public works were sold in 1857, in 1858 the Republicans carried the House, in 1859 they carried both House and Senate, and in 1860 they elected the Governor and a majority in both houses.

During these ten years the ruling party had the benefit of the revenue from the State tax on tonnage on the Pennsylvania railroad. The revenue from these two sources, during the decade referred to, was as follows:

	Tonnage Tax.	State Tax.
1851	$9,514 71	$1,372,176 37
1852	21,279 66	1,359,636 20
1853	67,227 22	1,381,550 59
1854	118,265 11	1,510,903 39
1855	161,125 25	1,721,114 79
1856	250,947 24	1,682,035 21
1857	204,564 11	1,554,667 34
1858	224,535 62	1,610,229 19
1859	47,582 68	1,388,562 18
1860	31,425 15	1,444,674 93
	$1,136,397 75	$15,624,984 19
		1,136,397 75
Total revenue from these sources in ten years		$16,161,381 94

And yet, with all this revenue, and $300,000 additional paid in three installments, 1858, 1859 and 1860, by the Pennsylvania railroad in redemption of its bonds, given in purchase of the public works, the public debt remained almost unchanged for six years, and was finally reduced in the following four years, but a trifle, as these figures show:

State debt December 1, 1850	$40,775,485 42
State debt December 1, 1860	37,969,847 50
Total reduction in ten years	$2,805,637 92
Or an average of about $280,000 a year.

Shortly after the Republicans came fully into possession of the State government in 1861, they were confronted with the necessity of arming the troops of the State called out to suppress the rebellion and to put the State into a condition of defense. Hence the negotiations of the war loan of 1861. They therefore commenced their decade with a debt of over forty millions, as follows:

State debt December 1, 1860	$37,969,847 50
War loan of 1861	3,500,000 00
Total	$41,469,847 50

The tonnage tax was repealed in 1861, and subsequently, in February, 1866, the three mill tax on real estate was repealed, so that these large sources of revenue enjoyed by the Democrats were cut off from their successors, the annual payment into the Sinking Fund by the Pennsylvania railroad being increased, by the repeal of the tonnage tax, from $100,000 to $460,000 annually.

With the tonnage tax repealed since 1861, and the three mill tax abolished since 1865, the Republican administration of the State has still managed to reduce the public debt more than one-fourth. A statement published, officially, by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, shows the public debt, July 1, 1871, to be as follows:

RECAPITULATION OF PUBLIC DEBT.

Debt bearing coin interest	$4,507,300 00
Debt bearing interest in U. S. currency	24,782,445 30
Debt on which interest has been stopped	155,976 36
Debt bearing no interest	100,866 05
Total debt, July 1, 1871	29,546,587 71

We can thus fairly compare the result of the two decades:

State debt, Dec. 1, 1850	$40,775,485 42
" " 1860	37,969,847 50
Reduction in ten years under the Democrats	$2,805,637 92
State debt, Dec. 1, 1860	$37,969,847 50
War debt, since added	3,500,000 00
	$41,469,847 50
Debt July 1, 1871	$29,546,587 71
Reduction in ten years, under the Republicans	$11,923,259 79
Difference in favor of the Republicans	$ 9,117,621 87
Annual average reduction under Democratic rule	280,563 79
Annual average reduction under Republican rule	1,192,325 97
Annual difference to the people of the State	911,762 18

And this, be it remembered, has been accomplished with not merely a reduction of taxation, but under a total repeal of all direct taxation upon the property of the people.

We commend these figures to the careful attention of the voters of the State.

KU-KLUX DEMOCRACY.

The evidence elicited before the Congressional Committee on Ku-Klux outrages is of the most startling character, and fully proves the infamy and desperation of the Southern Democracy. To think that this diabolism and lawlessness is practiced by the very party and the very men, who profess such unbounded veneration for the constitution and laws, is almost incredible, were not the evidence against them so overwhelming and conclusive.

Just imagine the great Democratic expounders of the constitution in the garb of fiends from the infernal regions, riding through the country at the dead hour of midnight, dragging from peaceful slumber the unhappy victims of their malice, to plunge through their vitals the assassins dagger, and that too in the presence of a weeping wife and helpless and innocent children. And these are the men who assume to teach the people their duty under the constitution.

Why sir, it is enough to chill ones blood and shake all confidence in humanity to read the horrible details of Ku-Klux operations in the South. Yet they have the brazen effrontery to talk about the Constitution, and endeavor to make the world believe that they have regard for an instrument, for the destruction of which, they waged a cruel bloody war for 5 years, and even now trample all its sacred provisions beneath their feet. It is almost enough to bring the charter of our nation's liberties into disrepute, to have it even named by those whose very breath is foul with disloyalty and reeking with treason, and who, disguised as demons, raid over the country leaving in their track, desolation, tears and death.

Are we, as Republicans, not grossly negligent of our duty, if we allow Democrats to catechise us on the Constitution, while their brethren and allies are making the midnight stillness, terrible with their work of assassination of peaceful citizens, simply because they are Republicans and believe in the divine and holy doctrines of civil and religious liberty, and political equality of all men?

Let us Republicans, boldly stand up and tell these Constitution expounders what we think of them and their friends, when their superciliousness prompts them to thrust themselves and their infamous record upon our notice. Had Republicans used the same persistency in advocating their principles, and pressing their claims upon the people, as the Democracy, the Copperhead party of America, would to-day, only live in history and be remembered only to be despised. Its hideous deformity, treason and murders would have sunk it lower than death, and consigned it to eternal infamy.

DEMOCRATIC RULE.

The following expose, by the Vicksburg Times and Republican, of Democratic Rule, wherever it reigns supreme, is worth reading:

"New York city is governed by free and unadulterated Democrats. Every department of city government, executive, judicial and legislative, is in their hands. Their majorities range from fifty to eighty thousand. The most eminent men of the party in the whole nation are among the city's rulers—Hoffman Hall, Tweed, Sweeney, Connelly, et id omne genus. From Mayor down to policemen you cannot find a single Republican in a position where he can exercise the least authority or control. Surely here, if anywhere, we might expect to enjoy the blessings of Democratic rule in their full fruition. Here that vaunted economy which they would have us believe is the distinguishing characteristic of Democracy has a fair field to display its glories.

"Now what are the facts? For the last two years the Democratic party has spent over fifty millions of dollars annually in the government of a city with less than one million of people, or over fifty dollars for every man, woman and child. At that rate it would cost the democracy six hundred thousand dollars a year to administer the affairs of the city of Vicksburg. The Mississippi State government would cost forty-five millions of dollars per annum, and the general government would have to rub along as best it could on the paltry stipend of two thousand millions a year, a little less than the present national debt. Is this the kind of financiers to whom we should turn over the government."

Rev. Father Sterling, of Williamsport, has in his possession nearly nineteen hundred manuscript sermons, which were preached by him during his thirty-five years in the ministry. This number does not include his lectures or extra sermons.

For the REPUBLICAN.

NEAR GRASSHOPPER KANSAS, August 25th, 1871.

FRIEND COL. BROWN:

Dear Sir:—When I gave you the parting hand, I said maybe you will hear from me soon. Well I have concluded as this is a convenient time, to let you know how matters are moving off here in suffering Kansas (as many of our brethren in the east call it, but by the way is a great mistake).

I arrived in this State on the 21st, after a zigzag style of travel in the old Western States. Having plenty of time, I concluded at Kansas city not to go right on to Denver or the Buffalo country, but to spend a little time in Kansas, and now I am tempted almost to flatter myself for coming to such a wise conclusion, and I do tell you I feel overjoyed to think I am here, to behold for myself the beauties of this delightful country. Long before leaving the East, the cry was Kansas is in a famishing condition. Now mark the contrast given by one that is not a land speculator, don't even own one foot of land in this State, (but soon will) what he has to say.

I saw many flourishing towns on my way to Atchison, I might as well call them cities as they soon will be that. People all seemed "merry, living, laughing and getting fat." I found Atchison a thriving young city of some ten thousand or more souls, neat public buildings, clean streets, and the finest stores I ever saw in a place of its size, selling goods at a rapid rate and much cheaper than in the east, and for the satisfaction of our farmers, I can say the markets are good, wheat bringing $1,00 to $1,10.

Being now satisfied the place was all right, I left, and taking the 3 P. M., train, C. B. U. P., I saw much fine country as far as Effingham, I then stepped from the car and took a stroll some eight miles south, over the finest roads in America, saw much fine Prairie yet to be turned over by the plow of civilization. The buildings in the country are mostly small, yet look cheerful, most of them painted, if not they are made white by lime. Many persons have told me that the Pennsylvanians are the most enterprising people they have, and to show you how they can make things get here, I will just state that a little more than two years ago Mr. H. P. Pontius one of Centre Co's., most enterprising citizens, came here. He purchased a fine lot of wild land where but eight years before the red man and the buffalo roamed in wildness. He did not spend his time in dispondance; but just put his shoulder to the wheel.

Now mark the results of his enterprize. After putting up a fine house, good stable and all the out buildings that he needed, he had them all neatly painted. He also got the best of water at less than 30 feet. He commenced stock raising, after doing so, his brother Samuel, from Zion, joined him last spring, and now they are erecting some as fine buildings for his accomodation as need be anywhere on an Eastern farm.

They have over two hundred choice hogs, and as fine a herd of native cattle as I ever saw.

A party of us mounted on ponies, loaped over the rolling prairies to see a herd of several hundred head of Texas cattle, they looked fine and slick. The horns were an item of attraction to a person not accustomed to the sight. They were near the line of the railroad now constructing from Atchison to Santa Fee, New Mexico. On our return I beheld the real beauties of this Western scenery. The land being rolling and the Prairie covered for miles with green herbage, not a house to be seen, as I sat on my horse, I beheld with solemn awe the glories of the golden sunset. A sight that the artist can never do justice to.

The soil here in Kansas is very productive. The finest fruits in abundance; the cereals are behind no place, East or West; a good school system; society is of western style and improving as they tell me, every day. Land ranges from $8 to $25 per acre, according to location. The climate is mild. For the satisfaction of those who may have a desire to move here. I will say it will need some capital and plenty of ambition here, as well as elsewnere. No one can make anything without they have from fifteen hundred, to two thousand dollars, and the more money the better. It is a poor place for a lazy man to live, at least if he is poor. In fact I may say, it is a poor place for a man without capital.

My next letter will be from Denver. I am much pleased to see the REPUBLICAN here before me, and I do tell you it is well read by the Centre county people.

MARK.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

LEARN A LITTLE EVERY DAY.

Little rills make wider streamlets,
Streamlets swell the river's flow,
Rivers join the mountain billows,
Onward, onward as they go!
Life is made of smallest fragments,
Shade and sunshine, work and play;
So may we, with greatest profit,
Learn a little every day.

Tiny seeds make boundless harvests,
Drops of rain compose the showers;
Seconds make the flying minutes,
And the minutes make the hours!
Let us hasten, then, and catch them
As they pass us on the way;
And with honest, true endeavor,
Learn a little every day.

Let us read some striking passage,
Cull a flower from every page;
Here a line, there a sentence,
'Gainst the lonely time of age!
At our work, or by the wayside,
While the sunshine's making hay;
Thus we may, by help of study,
Learn a little every day.

WAS HE GUILTY?

I

"Sheriff, remove the prisoner?" commanded the Judge.

"Five years, five long years in the Penitentiary! Great God! I am not guilty! I am not!" cried Reginald Forrester, as he was led away.

He had been sentenced to five years' hard labor for breaking the dam of John Cluny's flouring mill. Two brothers, John and Charles Crocker, were the principal witnesses. They swore that late one night about six months before, as they were walking home, they saw Forrester walking rapidly along the path leading to the dam. Thinking that something had happened to the sluice gates, they were about to follow in order to assist, when they saw that he began to cut away the props that upheld the timber. Horror-struck, they stopped. It was too late. The dam gave way. Rushing down the road toward the mill, the shouted:

"The flood! the flood!"

The miller heard the shouts, and had just time to save himself and his family. Shortly after the flood reached the mill and swept it away. A merchant of the village close by swore that Forrester had bought an axe, a shovel and a pick on the evening previous to the breaking of the dam. The axe was found hidden among some bushes close to the path, and was identified by the merchant to be the same which Reginald bought of him. The miller swore that Forrester had been seen lurking round the mill. The miller further stated that at the time he discharged him, he (Forrester) swore to be even with him.

"And he destroyed my property because I discharged him for daring, against my wishes, to make love to my daughter, Amy."

Only one person believed Forrester to be innocent—Amy Cluny, the miller's daughter.

II.

It was twelve at noon, just four years after the conviction of Forrester, when the door of the State's Prison opened to him. A pale, bowed-down man, whose eyes were constantly seeking the ground, walked down the road toward the ferry-boat. The crowd that stood on the wharf quickly moved aside as the man tottered towards a bench.

"A pardoned convict!" ran from mouth to mouth.

Yes, Forrester, for it was he, had been pardoned by the Governor. Four long years he had toiled in the brick-yard of the prison. Thoughts of self-destruction often flitted across his weary mind. Often, as he stood near the furnace of the brick-kiln, he thought that only one bold lead into the roaring flames, and his misery would be at an end.

He had received only two letters during his imprisonment. One was from Amy.

The other letter came from New York. It was from a lawyer, and it read: "This is to inform you that Allan Forrester, Esq., your uncle, has departed this life. He died intestate, and you are sole heir to——"

The letter was received two days before he was pardoned.

"Fortune avails me nothing; the world thinks me guilty," cried he.

III.

"Forrester has come back. I wonder why in the world he wants to come to this place again. He's sick, and he has threatened to shoot Jim Crocker if he calls him 'convict' again." Such were the reports that spread over the village like wildfire.

At last the news came to the ears of the miller. With a muttered curse upon his enemy, as he called Forrester, he ascended the stairs leading to the second story of the new mill that had been erected in place of the old one swept away. His steps was noiseless as he approached Amy's bed-room. He looked through the key-hole. A minute afterwards he wrenched open the door and rushed into the room—he had seen Amy signaling to somebody.

As he rushed to the window he caught a glimpse of the figure of a man as he disappeared behind a projecting cliff—it was the form of Forrester. He caught hold of Amy's arm.

"Who was that man? Quick, tell me," came from between his clenched teeth.

Amy uttered a shriek of pain.

He dropped her arm and rushed from the room, but soon returned with a loaded gun in his hands, and dragged her to the open window. A hand of a man could plainly be seen rising slywly from behind the cliff. Amy sank upon her knees. The miller released her arm and slowly raised his gun. He had recognized the features of Forrester.

"Signal!" shouted her father, "so that I can be sure of him. I want to shoot him through his black heart!"

"Mercy!" shouted Amy, raising her hands.

Forrester, who only saw Amy, now crept sloyly towards a projecting shelf of the cliff. He did not know what Amy meant by raising her hands. Soon he stood at the extreme edge of the cliff, not more than fifteen or sixteen feet, in a horizontal line, from the window. Thirty feet below him the water of the canon roared over huge boulders, and behind was a solid wall of granite, twelve feet high. The shelf was only two feet high.

"Die, convict!" shouted John Cluny.

Forrester heard the word "convict," saw the old man, saw the bright barrel of the gun as it was pointed toward him, heard the report, then all was black.

When his conciousness returned, he found himself lying on the top of the cliff. It was night. A form was bending over him. By the dim starlight he could distinguish the features, but a cold shudder passed through his body as he felt a hand upon his face, and heard the well-known tone of the miller.

"He's dead, and I ain't a bit sorry for it either. But what am I going to do with the body? I can't throw it over the cliff. Well, I guess its best to stick to my first plan."

The miller took a rope from his pocket, passed it beneath the arm pits of Forrester, and dragged the body to a cave only known to himself. The cave was situated close to where one end of the mill-dam was fastened by means of heavy timbers to the cliffs. The opening was concealed by a clump of bushes.

"No one will ever find him there," muttered he.

When he entered the bed-room of his daughter, he found her lying upon the floor insensible.

IV.

When Forrester awoke from his death-like swoon, darkness was around him. Painfully he lifted himself upon his elbow. Bending aside the boughs, he saw the glimmer of a lantern which stood upon the dam close to the sluice gates. When Forrester's eyes became more accustomed to the darkness, he perceived the forms of two men, who were bending over the breastwork of the gates. Soon the sound of voices came to his ears—he heard his name mentioned. He was about to creep through the opening of the bushes when the men began to walk towards him. About four feet from where he was lying they stopped.

"What time is it, Jim?" said one of them.

"Time enough for our little job," replied the other.

"This time he'll be cooped up for life you bet," said Jim.

"Or else he'll swing for it," remarked the other.

"He'll swing for it," echoed Jim.

"Look there, Jim," interrupted the other.

"What the devil's up, you fool?"

"I thought I saw a man's face peeping at me from the manzanita."

Forrester had protruded his head. He saw by the light of the burning match the bloated faces of James and Charles Crocker.

"Stuff and nonsense. Go to work. Have you fixed the plank so that you can shove it across the gulch to her window?"

"Yes," growled the brother, "but it was devlish hard work."

"Then we are sure of the gal. Now for the dam," said Charles, moving away.

Like a flash of lightning the plot of the villains was revealed to Forrester.

They first intended to cut the dam; then they would rescue the family of the miller by means of the plank. Of course this latter would insure the gratitude of the miller. The breaking of the dam would again be charged upon Forrester, who, as one of the brothers remarked, would be sentenced to the Penitentiary for life, or else he would swing for it."

A look toward the dam showed that the water was nearly level with the path. He heard the creaking of timbers and planks as the two men were prying with an iron bar at one of the beams. A rumbling sound was heard—it was the pent up water as it began to overflow the dam. He rose to his feet, and, drawing aside the bushes, he stepped upon a shelf-like path which ran alongside the cliff.

"Villains!" he shouted. The two brothers looked up, but saw no one, for the light of the lantern was illuminating the sluice-gates. They resumed their work. Again Forrester shouted, and again they lifted their heads, when there came a terrible crash mingled with the roar of the water. Forrester heard a cry of despair, and saw James Crocker fall headlong over the dam into the seething water below.

With a prayer upon his lips for the safety of her he loved, he ran along the narrow path until he came opposite the mill.

"The flood! the flood! For God's sake, save your lives! The water is coming! They have cut the dam!" he cried.

The window of Amy's bed-room was thrown open, and the miller, with lighted candle in hand, was standing before it. Too late. The rushing water had already encircled the mill, which was now swaying to and fro.

"Help! help!" shouted John Cluny, raising the light above his head. A cry of terror escaped his lips as the light shone upon the pale face of the man whom he thought he had killed. The candle dropped from his hand as he sank upon the floor. Meanwhile Forrester was searching for the plank. At last he found it. He tried to shove it across the gulf, but his strength failed him.

"Oh God! is there no help here to assist me? Help! help!" he cried, still tugging at the plank.

"Come on, boys," shouted a voice.

Soon a dozen men with lanterns were rushing towards Forrester.

"The convict!" cried the foremost, as he held the lantern to the face of the prostrated man.

"He has cut the dam again," cried a miner, "I am sure of it."

"Impossible; see, he has been wounded," cried the first speaker. Forrester pointed to the plank, and then towards the mill.

The men understood his gestures. Soon one end of the plank found a resting place upon the window sill, and a man with lantern in hand walked across the swaying bridge and disappeared through the window. Another and another followed. A few minutes after two men crawled back across the plank, bearing between them the insensible form of the miller; another followed bearing the brother of Amy. But where was the miller's daughter? The last man came across empty-handed. She could not be found.

"Amy, dearest Amy!" shouted Forrester. His shrill voice sounded above the awful roar of the waters.

A white form was seen at the window. It lifted its hands, as if to warn some one away. The light of half a dozen lanterns lighted her ghastly face, which was partially concealed by her long black tresses.

Forrester saw her. With superhuman strength he rose to his feet and staggered toward the plank.

Amy stepped upon the window sill. She had heard the voice of him she loved. Slowly she walked across the plank, until she was within a few feet of the men. She stopped. Again her lover pronounced her name. She recognized his voice. A cry of joy came from her lips, as she gave a bound which brought her within the reach of the outstretched hands of the men.

Another cry answered from the gulf below—a cry for help. Immediately after the mill sank with a fearful crash in the canon. But soon the rising water overcame that slight obstruction and carried it down the channel.

Toward morning, when the water had subsided somewhat, a party of men found the mangled body of James Crocker, which had lodged between two boulders. Close by they found his brother, with both legs broken. He was yet alive. A cry of intense pain came from his swollen lips as the men lifted him upon a rude stretcher.

"Let me die here! Let me die here!" cried he. "I feel that I'm hurt inside. Put me down. I have only a short time to live, and want to confess. Reginald Forrester is innocent of the crime for which he suffered. It was I and my brother who cut—"

These were Charles Crocker's last words. A stream of blood welled from his mouth. Once more he tried to raise himself, then he breathed his last.

An entire week passed away before the village doctor pronounced Reginald out of danger. The ball fired from the rifle of the miller had glanced from his temple. It had made an ugly, but not a mortal wound. His over-exertion on that terrible night had greatly increased his illness; but he gradually regained his former health and strength.

Three months after the breaking of the dam, Amy, her brother, father and Forrester left California forever.

BE LIVELY.—Nothing on earth can smile but human beings. Gems may flash reflected light, but what is a diamond flash compared with an eye flash and mirth flash? A face that cannot smile is like a bud that cannot blossom, and dries up on the stalk. Laughter is day, and sobriety is night; and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both, and which is more bewitching than either.

NEWSPAPERS IN JAPAN.—In Pekin a newspaper of extraordinary size is published weekly on silk. It is said to have been published more than a thousand years ago. In 1827 a public officer caused some false intelligence to be inserted in this paper, for which he was put to death. Several numbers of the paper are preserved in the Royal library at Paris. They are ten and a quarter yards long.

SERVED HIM RIGHT.—Andrew Jackson, of St. Louis, applied to a justice the other day for the arrest of Brownlow Johnson. He said he "done went on de ruff of Johnson's house, jist to frow some bricks down de chimbly to scare a cullud gal dat slept in de house, and Johnson done locked de scuttle, and make him stay up dar till eight o'clock de next mornin." He didn't get the warrant.

VANISHED YEARS.

Who can look back upon the vanished years without a sigh of regret for the many beautiful remembered joys that the years now vanished brought to us, but can never return to us again?

To one, it is the memory of a child's caressing fingers, straying over the face and hands; of clinging arms about the neck, and the pattering of tiny-slippered feet over the stairs or down the hall. It is the music of a sweet, innocent voice floating in rippling laughter, or precious baby-words from the past along the vanished years into the tide of the present.

To another, sweet, loved faces float suddenly from the mist of the vanished years. As if the daisies grew not between the closed eyes and our own, they meet us again with the same never forgotten glance of tenderness, and we ask of the vanished years if they have given back to us our own, or whether the spirits of the air take form, sometimes only to vanish again, leaving us only our memories. Half-forgotten songs float dreamily back to us, and the memory of a woman's smile or a manly voice has thrilled many a heart with an intensity of emotion that only a presence from the vanished years could bring.

Youth, beauty, love and happiness all belong to the beautiful vanished years, and looking forward brings not the satisfaction that we find in silent, sweet communion with the past.

The joys, the happiness that has been ours, is ours still, for faithful memory is ever going backward to the vanished years, and bringing to us our treasures that have been.

But in looking forward we see only what may be, and past experience tells us that hopes fail. Perhaps there is nothing in the past of a person who has reached the quiet, middle years of life that so brings mingled sadness and smiles as the recollections of youth's first love.

How real it all seems then; and yet how is the vision changed.

The girl that seemed an angel then, is only an ordinary mortal now, faded and world-weary, like the boy who thought himself a man, and claimed the manly right of worshipping every angel in maidenly guise.

And from among the relics of the departed years is drawn the curl of shining hair that was such a talisman then.

It is just as bright, just as golden now and it coils itself about your finger just as prettily, reminding us in its almost animated curling of the coquettish grace of its wearer.

But, alas! the years in vanishing have stolen from it its talismanic powers, and to-day it is only a lock of woman's hair shorn before the silver threads began to linger in sad, silent tokens of the care and weariness of the earth-life.

And a thought of silver hairs brings us back to the present, and glancing in the mirror we find them plentifully bestowed upon ourselves, and smile as we wonder if the girl to whom that curl belonged has kept that shining lock of bright chestnut hair we gave her in exchange.

Only the vanished years can tell.

Do they tell us of a broken vow that made two lives a failure?

Why, then, did not that golden hair rest forever in happy security against the breast whereon it leaned when a lover's hand severed the shining curl?

Ah! we gather only the beautiful memories from the vanished years! Our treacheries and deceitfulness we consign to the past, and say "let the dead past bury its dead," and clasp more closely the sweet cherished memories that were exquisite in the reality.

How sacredly we treasure them! How we linger with them! But lingering with the vanished years brings us to silent grass-grown graves and mossy tomb stones, and thence to tears.

So we fold away the treasured memories, and know that though the straying baby-fingers may nevermore stray over our faces, hands and hair, nor the tiny feet make music over the stairs and down the hall, nor white-haired age grow young again, nor broken vows be renewed, nor anything belonging to the vanished years return to us, we are hastening on to them. Earth life is only a shadow of the substance that the second life affords.

Eternity is before us, and who shall say that in the eternal years all shall not be restored to us.

IT is pretty well understood in New York that the Democracy intend to make a "new departure" on Tweed, Hall, Sweeney & Co., repudiating them as leaders of their party, and kicking them out of political power as well as social intercourse. When this is attempted, when the thieves fall out, the honest men will get their dues. Tweed will then inform us how much of the stolen funds, charged to his account, was devoted to electioneering purposes. —State Journal.

RELY UPON YOURSELF.—Never ask a favor. It is better to suffer than to supplicate; and asking a favor even from your dearest friend, or your nearest relative, is only a mild form of supplication. Get what you want by your own unaided exertions, or go without it. There is more dignity in penury, no matter how abject, coupled with independence, than in an indolent comfort gained through the grant of a favor.

Chuck Me Out.

Among the first class restaurants in Boston, is one in S—— street, kept by W——. Among the visitors who entered the place this summer was a semi-clerical looking gentleman, who ordered up a broiled quail and a dozen fried oysters. While discussing these delicacies, he touched the bell and requested the waiter to send the proprietor to him. The waiter complied, and a few moments afterwards the semi-clerical looking gentleman was in cozy colloquy with Mr. W—— about matters and things in general.

"By the way, W——, what was the trouble with that young man I saw you in an altercation with on Friday evening last?"

"He contracted a bill to the amount of two dollars, and then refused to pay up."

"And what did you do with him?"

"Chucked him out of doors."

"Nothing else?"

"No; going to law don't pay. To have obtained two dollars' worth of money by means of litigation would have consumed ten dollars' worth of time."

"Then all you do is to chuck them out, as you say?"

"That's all."

"Well, that may be a wise plan, but I doubt it."

"By the way, what kind of wines have you got."

"As good an article of Heidsick as you can find in this city. Will you have a bottle?"

"On one condition, and that is, that you will join me in its imbibition."

"With pleasure, sir."

"The bell was again tinkled—a white jacket appeared in the doorway—the white jacket vanished. In a moment the white jacket re-appeared, bringing in a silver top on a juvenile salver. The wine was poured out, duly iced, and disposed of. In a few moments after this W—— begged to be excused, and he left his friend to finish up the quail. The friend did so, and then re-appeared in the bar-room.

"Where can I find a little water to dip my fingers in?"

"In the wash-bowl by the looking glass."

The stranger crossed the room took a wash, brushed up his whiskers, adjusted his white cravat, and once more sought the proprietor.

"Mr. W——, I have really enjoyed myself. I cannot recollect when I have ever relished wine and quail with a greater zest."

"Happy to hear you say so."

"As a memento of the little repast, I have one slight favor to ask."

"What is it?"

"Chuck me out."

"What? You don't mean to say that you have been doing me?"

"I don't mean to say anything else. I have not got the first red cent; and if you want pay for the quail, oysters and wine, you must do as I said before, chuck me out."

W—— could hear no more. He made a rush to the kitchen to get the cheese knife. While he was absent our semi-clerical friend dashed out the side door, and when last seen was rushing north, at the rate of fourteen miles an hour.

CHURCH SPIRES.—The following which we clip from the Methodist seems to have been written expressly for the Presbyterian Church, and other church spires in this place:—

The spire—external, symbolical, ornamental—deserves the best attention of art. It is one of the noblest embellishments of cities, and as much of villages. A noble church spire is one of the finest architectural sights on earth. It is suggestive of highest and holiest thoughts. It gives dignity and impressiveness to the religious life of a people and relief to the aspect of cities or villages. Churches with sufficient means, that lavish expense on such structures make a generous and refining contribution to the public life. Whatever tends like grand spires, to ornament earth and sky, to suggest divine thought to the passing observer, to give dignity or sublimity to the sanctuaries of the people, and thereby, indirectly, at least, to the popular religious ideas, is an inestimable good.

HIS HEAD WAS LEVEL.—A New York wholesale grocer, who had become rich in his business, has lately made the following revelation. He says his rule always was when he sold a bill of goods on credit, to immediately subscribe for the local paper of his debtor. So long as his customer advertised liberally and vigorously, he rested, but as soon as he began to contract his advertising space, he took the fact as evidence that there was trouble ahead, and he invariably went for his debt. "For," said he, "the man who feels too poor to do business." This withdrawing of an advertisement is an evidence of weakness that business men are not slow to observe. A hint to the wise, &c.

DEMOCRATIC administration in New York city, is thus described by William Cullen Bryant, of the Evening Post:

The time has been when the service of the people in office was regarded as the worthy ambition of our best men, who had their reward in public approval, and perhaps in promotion to greater power and honor. Now that service, in this city, has come to be regarded as a trade by which men may be enriched; as a subject of traffic; as the satisfaction, not of a noble ambition, but of a degrading avarice.

Waiting For The Ship.

About an hour's ride from the Plaza, Fort Point, there is a high bluff, with the ocean braking uninterruptedly along its rocky beach. There are several cottages on the sands, which look as if they had recently been cast up by a heavy sea. The cultivated patch behind each tenement is fenced in by bamboos, broken spars and drift wood. With its few green cabbages and turnip tops, each garden looks something like an aquarium, with the water turned off. In fact, you would not be surprised to meet a merman digging among the potatoes, or a mermaid milking a sea-cow hard by.

Near this place formerly arose a great semaphoric telegraph, with its gaunt arms tossed up against the horizon. It has been replaced by an observatory, connected with an electric nerve to the heart of the great commercial city. From this point the incoming ships are signalled, and again checked off at the City Exchange. And while we are here looking for the expected steamer, let me tell you a story.

Not long ago a simple, hard-working mechanic had amassed sufficient, by diligent labor in the mines, to send home for his wife and two children.—He arrived in San Francisco a month before the time the ship was due, for he was a Western man and had made the over-land journey, and knew little of seas, or ships or gales. He procured work in the city, but as the time approached he would go to the shipping-office regularly every day. The month passed but the ship came not, then a month, and a week, two weeks, three weeks, two months, and then a year.

The rough patient face, with soft lines overlying its hard features, which had become a daily apparition at the shipping agent's, then disappeared. It turned up one afternoon at the observatory, as the setting sun relieved the operator from his duties. There was something so child-like and simple in the few questions asked by this stranger, touching his business, that the operator spent some time to explain. When the mystery of signals and telegraph was unfolded, the stranger had one more question to ask. "How long might a vessel be absent before they would give up expecting her?" The operator couldn't tell; it would depend on circumstances.—Would it be a year? Yes, it might be a year, and vessels have been given up for lost after two years, and have come home. The stranger put his rough hand on the operator's and thanked him for his "trouble," and went away. Still the ship came not. Stately clippers swept into the gate, and merchantmen went by with colors flying, and the welcoming gun on the steamer often reverberated among the hills. Then the patient face, with the old resigned expression, but a brighter wistful look in the eye, was regularly met on the decks of the steamers as they disembarked their living freight. He may have had a dimly defined hope that the missing ones might yet come this way, as only another road over that strange, unknown expanse. But he talked with ship captains and sailors, and even his last hope seemed to fail. When the care-worn face and bright eyes were presented again at the observatory, the operator, busily engaged, could not spare time to answer foolish interrogatories, so he went away. But as the night fell, he was seen sitting on the rocks with his face turned seaward, and was seated there all that night.

When he become hopelessly insane, for that was what the physicians said made his eyes so bright and wistful, he was cared for by a fellow craftsman who had known his troubles. He was allowed to indulge his fancy of going out to watch for the ship in which she "and the children" were at night, when no one else was watching. He had made up his mind that the ship would come in at night. This, and the idea that he would relieve the operator, who would be tired with watching all day, seemed to please him. So he went out and relieved the operator every night!

For two years the ships came and went. He was there to see the outward-bound clipper, and greet her on her return. He was known only by a few who frequented the place. When he was missed at last from his accustomed spot, a day or two elapsed before any alarm was felt. One Sunday, a party of pleasure seekers clambering over the rocks, were attracted by the barking of a dog that had run before them. When they came up, they found a plainly dressed man lying there dead. There were a few papers in his pocket—chiefly slips cut from different journals of old marine memoranda—and his face was turned toward the distant sea.

P. G. MEEK will be defeated over 300 majority this fall.

An Editor's Responsibilities.

The duties of an editor are much more onerous than many persons suppose. So many subjects come up for consideration and action; so many individuals are to be affected by the appearance of suppression of an item; so much good or harm is wrought by thousands of people receiving at once the same idea of the same information or by these being withheld from them, so many are accustomed to look to him for some degree of guidance, that great care is needful to the proper performance of his work. Beside keeping himself informed as to what his customers expect and require of him, he must learn how to meet their wants. This involves a wide rage of general information, knowledge of the events of the day, familiarity with personal and social influences, decision of character, and faithfulness. He must have nerve enough to tell the truth, even at the risk of offending. He must carefully discriminate between good and poor contributions and communications, neither accepting the latter nor overlooking the former. He must be on the watch to frustrate attempts to misuse his columns for small and selfish ends, and equally watchful to do justice to all and secure the co-operation of the worthy and judicious. The editor's chair requires such a combination of keenness, decision, and firmness, that comparatively few men are strong enough to fill it long with success.

As to the great importance of the editor's work, the Christian Union (Henry Ward Beecher) recently made the following statement:

"Pastors who are hard at work attempting to mould religious opinion and conduct, laymen who long for the coming of the kingdom, do not read your paper as if it were only a luxury—it is a power; it is a mighty power; and the men who decide what voice shall reach your ears, who write editorials, who mould and color the thousand items which enter your household, either for good or evil, need your hearty prayers. In this age the preacher can no more ignore the editor than he can gesture without hands. The work done in the pulpit will be undone in a half-hour's reading, unless the same Spirit guides them both into all truth."

THE people of the border should remember that it was with the full knowledge that the rebels were then ravaging Southern Pennsylvania; on the day after the call of the State Executive was published in Philadelphia, for militia to protect the bleeding border; and upon the very day when the citizens of Chambersburg and their wives and children fled under the burning July sun from the cruel flames and a more cruel enemy, that Gen. McCandless, the trained and petted soldier, declined to enter the ranks of the army, and declared his judgment that the post of honor was the private station.—Beaver Radical.

Medical.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the symptom seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attacks of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seemes to breed infection throughout the body, and then on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas Tetter, Salt Rheum, scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leycorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion of Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are LANGUID and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

OUR CANDIDATES.

The Republican County Convention, which met on Wednesday last, was an encouraging and gratifying expression of the determination of the party to undertake this campaign with all the vigor and earnestness necessary to make sure the triumph of the party in the coming election.

The business of the Convention was accomplished in the most harmonious manner, and the candidates placed in nomination give universal satisfaction. There were no petty disputes, senseless janglings or doggerel parliamentary quarrels, such as characterized the Democratic convention.

Our candidate for Assembly

was born and raised in Centre county, and for many years has lived in Harris township. At the outbreak of the war he raised a company and took it to Harrisburg where it was united with the 148th regiment. He was afterwards elected Colonel of this regiment in which capacity he won the confidence and respect of his command for his bravery and integrity. He served his country well and faithfully—is a high-minded and honorable gentleman of undoubted probity and tried ability, and will be, if elected, an honor not only to the county, but to the State, in the legislature.

Were he as well known to every voter in the county as he is to us his election would be placed beyond a peradventure.

DAVID M. WAGNER,

the party nominee for Associate judge is one of Centre county's most successful merchants. He commenced life a poor boy and by his honesty and industry has gained for himself and family an ample competence. He is a man of fine social qualities, of unerring judgment, and will be a dignified and graceful ornament to the judicial bench.

There is another strong argument in favor of the election of Mr. Wagner.—Every lawyer in Bellefonte feels almost daily the necessity of having a judge residing at the county seat.

When the Hon. Samuel Linn, was President Judge and resided here we did not feel the necessity; now that he has left and the Associate Judges reside some dozen or more miles from town, the inconvenience is such as that it should cause every lawyer and citizen irrespective of party in this place, to make an effort to secure the election of Mr. Wagner.

The Democratic nominees both reside many miles from town and away from the railroads. Let us elect Mr. Wagner and put an end to this inconvenience.

The other candidate everybody knows as honest of Liberty. No truthful man in either party that knows Mr. Ligget dare presume to say that he is not in every way fitted to fill the office to which he aspires.

BEN. LIGGET,

MAJOR GEORGE A. BAYARD, was nominated for Treasurer by acclamation. He won his shoulder straps fighting the battles of his country in the late war.

He is a worthy scion of one of the oldest families in the State—is a highly educated gentleman and although never a political aspirant, has been a zealous advocate of Republican principles. No better man could be found to take charge of the county finances. We know of a number of democrats who have voluntarily proffered him their support which is another proof of the estimation he is held in by his neighbors irrespective of party predelictions.

A. J. SWARTZ,

the party's choice for Commissioner is a farmer residing in Spring township. Many citizens of the county who read this article can attest the many virtues and christian graces which adorn the life of Mr. Swartz.

The candidate for Surveyor

H. P. TRCZIYULNY,

lives in a neat little house in Boggs twp. below Milesburg. He is a sober industrious man, and, having been engaged in surveying in this county for many years, if elected, will be the right man in the right place.

JAMES GLENN,

for Auditor, resides in Harris township, is a farmer, a good accountant, and the noblest work of God—an honest man.

[From the Clinton Republican.]

The Last Chapter of the Last Book of the Democratic Chronicles.

BY JOHN THE SCRIBE.

1. And it came to pass that in the third year of the reign of Ulysses the Great, that plenty prevailed and the store houses were full.

2. That there came a voice on the seventeenth day of the seventh month from the great Sanhedrim of the Democracy of Clinton county unto the faithful, saying:

3. Behold now there are rulers to be chosen to sit in high places, even with the law makers of the people; and also judges, who shall administer unto the inhabitants according to the deeds they shall do.

4. The edict went forth to send up chosen of the Democracy out of the land, on the eighth day of the eighth month and at the sixth hour.

5. And at the appointed time, the chosen of the Democracy came together, even in the beautiful city of Lock Haven, and entered the Temple of Justice and there sat down.

6 And the great head of the Sanhedrim appeared in their midst and said: Behold all things are now ready; the chosen are here from the mountains and from the river side, and from that far off valley, even the valley of Sugar.

7. Now one of the chosen arose and said: Yea, master, we are here, ready to do thy bidding; give us the man Deise to preside over our deliberations, and we will do whatever thou wilt.

8. Then the man Deise was given unto them, and when he had taken his seat in their midst, they, with one accord, demanded of him what he would have them do.

9. And he answered and said unto them: Know ye not the man Peale, who, for many years has been faithful unto us; shall we not appoint him one of the chief rulers?

10. Also, there is a mighty Colonel, who lives by the great river that runs hard by, a man valiant in peace and peaceable in war—him would I elect to rule over this people.

11. And they answered and said: Whatsoever thou wilt have, that will we give unto thee.

12. And the man Deise again said unto the chosen: Behold now there are Judges to be set apart who shall sit in judgment among the people for many years.

13. And when he had done speaking there came a shout from the chosen, saying. There are many who would be Judges over us, permit us to choose whom we will have.

14. He answered and said unto them: Yea, their name is legion, for they are many; you must search them and if spirits be not found upon them cast them out, for none other should be permitted to judge us.

15. Then certain of the chosen said: There is a man from the valley whose name is Eldred, and a certain great physician, who consume not the wine nor strong drinks from us, and dwell not in the tents where they are sold; them would we have to judge over the people.

16. And there came a voice from the midst of the chosen saying: We know them not, their spirits are not our spirits; cast them out; they shall not sit in judgment against us or be remembered by us any more.

17. And Deise arose and said: Behold there is a man whose name is Dunn a tiller of the soil, who has labored long and faithfully for our cause; he has plowed the fields and tilled the ground and caused much corn to grow, which is so necessary for the production of that spirit which is the life of us:

18. And the chosen answered and said: We have come here in unity with the spirit of which thou speakest, therefore, it is our desire the man Dunn should judge for us.

19. When this man had been set apart as one chosen to judge for the Democracy, when caught up by the spirits, and taken to that castle whose doors are narrow and whose walls are dark, but many there be that find them.

20. The man Deise arose and said: Well done, good and faithful servants; thou hast selected one after our own spirits to judge us; but still there is another to be set apart, that they may associate together and judge us rightly, whether we be in the spirit or in the flesh.

21. And a certain Shelly, whose surname is Patrick, who hailed from the beautiful village called Renovo, arose and said: Is not one Queagey flesh of our flesh and in the spirit with us?

22. And did he not visit us at our homes, and among the poor and lowly, even where wines and strong drink are sold; and did he not minister to our wants by spending of his money freely, enabling us to take into our bodies that spirit which is so indispensable to our political life.

23. And certain of the leaders of the city of Lock Haven said: Yea, did he not do all those things, and even more for us? has he not said that if appointed Judge, he would give unto the people of the spirits, wheresoever they would ask, that the land might be filled with Democracy.

24. And at that time there came one from the mountains, even David the son of Isaac, a mighty hunter, saying: Take me for Judge; have I not done great things for the faithful? did I not build forts and strongholds in times of war?

25. I also encouraged thy people to flee the drafts to come and go to the uttermost parts of the earth, even to the land of Canada; and they hearkened unto my voice and are here to-day, and shall I not be rewarded for my labor?

26. But certain of the leaders said unto them: Know ye not that the wars are all over, and the "new departure" is at hand; that strongholds and implements of war are no use to us now, it is the spirit in abundance that availeth much.

27. And know ye not that there is a man whose name is Grugan seeks to be Judge over us, who for many years has been faithful even unto the selling of strong drinks.

28. And the chosen of the faithful cried out with a loud voice: Away with David, away with Queagey, for we will not have them judge us whether we are in the spirit or in the flesh.

29. If the man Grugan is a vender of strong drink, give him unto us and all will be well; David may build forts, Queagey may treat us plentiful with spirits, but to-morrow it is gone.

30. Oh! give us the man Grugan, a keeper of the fountain head, from which so bountifully flows that spirit which is so indispensable to the life of Democracy; and Grugan was given unto them.

31. And the man Deise arose and said: Well done; ye have kept your word and given unto us whatsoever we have demanded at thy hands, there are offices and there is honor awaiting all the faithful in the future, even to the dying of privates in the rear ranks of Democracy. Now I command ye, depart in peace.

32. And after they had departed, many were led by that spirit which abideth in the Montour House, and no tidings have been received from them since.

For the REPUBLICAN.

COL. W. W. BROWN; Dear Sir:—Will you allow me through the REPUBLICAN to address my Democratic friends who like myself feel that the time has come for us to rebuke in our party that which must lower it in the estimation of all true and honest men, namely, treachery and frauds in securing the nomination for office, when there is a fair expression of the party, had then every true Democrat should feel himself bound to support the nomination, but when the reverse is the fact, shall we lend ourselves to the iniquity and in fact endorse it by supporting those who were actually engaged in defeating the wishes of the majority. As lovers of the party shall we not be heard from in some effective way, that may be a warning to those who might be tempted in the future to pursue a similar course to that pursued by P. G. Meek, in securing his nomination over John H. Orvis, Esq., who was the choice of the party for Assemblyman. I am aware that we have friends on the ticket who are deserving, and should not suffer on his account, and in fact need not, and will not if we fairly and manly say that we have no sympathy with this new and humiliating way of securing a nomination. I am not for fighting outside of the party, but for correcting wrongs where they exist inside of the party, let him alone.

I know that some are fearful of their future if they do not support him as the editor of the Watchman. They dread his influence. May I not say, that if sorely pressed, we can dispense with him as editor? And especially so as we can't vouch more for his truthfulness when self interest is in the way. I am greatly inclined to the opinion that there are a goodly number who feel as I do, and only need to be told that they are not alone and that their safety depends somewhat upon the approbation, they may give to any dishonorable course to secure a place in the ticket.

THE AMERICAN WASHER?

PRICE $5.50

THE AMERICAN WASHER SAVES MONEY, TIME, AND DRUDGERY.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken of at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once becomes the fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

THE Novelty Clothes Wringer.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate freely at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer.—Has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequaled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried. Moore's Rural New-Yorker.

THE TAMMANY HALL SWINDLERS.

"As most of our readers know, Mr. Richard Connolly, the Comptroller, who disburses the money of this city and county, is required by law to make quarterly statements of receipts and expenditures. That it does not at all suit the books of Mr. Tweed, Mr. Sweeny, Mr. Hall, and Mr. Connolly himself that this exhibit should be made, may be readily imagined. Mr Tweed, for instance, was a bankrupt chairmaker a very few years ago, and now he has twenty-two or three horses in his stables, and, next to the Astors, is the largest real estate owner in the city. So Mr. Connolly coolly disregards the law, and does not make his exhibits. But the "Times" of this city, having, by hook or by crook, got hold of some of the Comptroller's figures, has begun publishing them, with the preliminary remark that Mayor Hall is a thief and a common cheat, that Connolly is another, and that if they dislike to be called so, they can bring a libel suit, and it will not only call them so, but prove them to be so, and prove Tweed and Sweeny to be the same. We may remark that a little more moderation of epithet would not detract from the weight of the "Times" case. The bladder with beans in it, as well as the lash, is audible after some of its strokes. It began on the 8th of the month to present its case, which briefly is as follows: The city pays rent for twenty-four armories to the amount of $275,600. Their real annual value, at a liberal estimate, is about $79,000. The Ring pockets the difference. The hiring is done by J. H. Ingersoll, the partner of Tweed in the chairmaking business, a business in which Tweed has apparently made up his mind not to suspend payment a second time. The claims for rent are passed upon by Hall and Connolly; and it is presumable that the $200,000, more or less, is not divided without the knowledge of Tweed and Peter Sweeny. But the embezzling of the rents is not the only way of making the armories a source of profit. They are perpetually needing repairs—ten of them, by the way, are entirely unoccupied—and their bills for chairs and carpets are enormous. For equipping the ten unoccupied ones and keeping them in repair nine months, the bills foot up $941,463,86. During the year 1869 and 1870, the sum drawn out of the treasury on warrants drawn directly in favor of Ingersoll & Co., or endorsed over to them, amounting to no less than $5,-663,646,83. For furniture, upholstery, and repairs most of this money was paid out, and it is a singular fact that much of the repairing was done on the new court house, which has the remarkable fate to be under repair before it is finished. Its appetite for carpets, too, is enormous, for it is debited with nearly six hundred thousand dollars worth. $566,631,34 are the exact figures, and supposing the carpeting to be worth five dollars a yard, here is money enough to carpet the City Hall Park all over with three thicknesses of carpeting. So careless were the thieves about their frauds, that in cooking up their accounts—some time after the fact evidently—they have in thirteen instances, as the day of certain recorded transactions, hit upon a Sunday, when the offices could not have been open, nor any work done of any kind, clerical or other. 'For plasterers' work and repairing done in the new county buildings during a period of little more than one year, a Mr. A. G. Garvey was paid $2,870,464,06. Some of these plasterers' or painters' warrants give curious evidence of the carelessness of our worthies. Two of them are drawn in favor of a certain Fillippo Donnarumna, and are endorsed over to Garvey in one case by the signature "Phillip F. Dummy," and in the other by the signature "Fillip Dummin." The Secret Accounts—Warrants signed by Hall and Connolly under False Pretences," is the "Times heading for its revelations, which naturally make some stir, and which, for the first time in its history, we believe, have brought the Ring before the public in an elaborate attempt to show that its hands are clean. It usually has thought best to keep on and not say a word."—THE NATION.

And yet the Tammany Democracy would fain persuade us to commit the national finances to their care.

COMPLIMENTS TO GENERAL M'CANDLESS.

One of the comrades in arms of General M'Candless, before he resigned his commission rather than fight for the freedom of the slaves, sends us the following somewhat pertinent inquires and suggestions, which are respectfully submitted to the Democratic candidate for Auditor General, now traversing Pennsylvania and advertising for the votes of the "Lincoln hirelings:"

Will you be kind enough to ask the following questions of Colonel William M'Candless, as he is traveling through the country begging the votes of the soldiers, on the ground that he served during the war in the Pennsylvania Reserves:

"'Did you, Colonel M'Candless, vote for the soldier, J. T. Owen, for Recorder of Deeds of Philadelphia?"

"'Did you vote for General John F. Hartranft for Auditor General?"

"'Did you vote for General John W. Geary for Governor?

"'Did you vote for U. S. Grant?"

"All these soldiers ran against well known Copperheads—men who opposed the war; men who, when you were in the field, with 'the elbow-touch when death's brief pang was quickest,' styled you and the rest of the soldiers of the Union army 'Lincoln hirelings and murderers;' who said we 'had no right to murder our dear Southern brethren;' who said we 'had no right to coerce the South;' who said we 'had no right to save the nation's life!'

"If the post of honor was the private station in 1864, why do you ask the votes of the soldiers who said, by their acts, that the post of honor was where death's brief pang was quickest?"

"This plea of 'Because I was a soldier in the Union army' is a good plea from men who have stuck to their colors, but a very poor plea for one who has joined the enemy he fought as well as you did for three years.

"A soldier who was with you in the old reserves, and believes in the great principles for which he fought—the Union, the Constitution, and the enforcement of the law, and equal rights for all men everywhere—ask these questions and makes these suggestions."—The Press.

PETERS' MUSICAL MONTHLY for September is a Splendid Number. It would seem almost impossible to improve this excellent work, and yet each succeeding number seems to be better than the last. This present number opens with a beautiful Ballad by G. W. Persley, entitled "Barney Aleen;" then follows a charming Song by Tucker, 'My Mother's Wedding-Ring;' after which comes Thomas's Sacred Song, "The Cross and Crown," which is alone worth double the price of the Monthly. "My Sister in Heaven," Song and Chorus, and 'The Home of the Swallows,' Duet, are also Gems of great value. These are followed by five Quartets, three easy Piano pieces and two elegant Transcriptions by Leonie Tonel, making a total of fifteen pieces, printed from thirty-six full-size music-plates, and you can get all this choice music for forty cents. Vol. VIII. commenced with the July number, and the publisher offers to send the July, August, and September numbers for 75 cents. Address J. L. PETERS, 599 Broadway, New-York.

EQUALITY.—After all that can be said about the advantages one man has over another, there is still a wonderful equality in human fortunes. If the rich have wealth, the poor have health; if the heiress has booty for her dower, the penniless have beauty for theirs; if the one has cash, the other has credit; one may boast his income, the other influence. No one is so miserable but his neighor wants something he possesses; and no one so mighty but he wants another's aid. There is no fortune so good but it may be reversed; and none so bad but it may be bettered. The sun that rises in clouds may set in splendor; and that which rises in splendor may set in gloom.

RATHER SEVERE.—An agent for a large life insurance company in New York called some time since on a gentleman with the hope of insuring his life. On asking if the gentleman was not desirous of taking out a life policy, he was met with the reply that if the company could insure him in the future state, he was perfectly willing. This seemed to be a poser, but the agent promptly replied that he was sorry to say his company was prevented by its charter from issuing any fire risks.

"MY yoke is easy and my burden is light," as the young fellow said when his girl was sitting on his lap with her arms around his neck.

GREEN OLD AGE.—I know not a more beautiful spectacle in the world than an old man who has gone with honor through all its storms and conquests, and who retains to the last the freshness of feeling that adorned his youth. This is the true green old age; this makes a southern winter of declining years, in which the sunlight warms, though the hearts have gone. Such are ever welcome to the young—and sympathy unites, while wisdom guides. There is this distinction—the latter has always in it something of love.

CHILDREN.—In our early youth, while yet we live only among those we love, we love without restraint, and our hearts overflow in every look, word and action. But when we enter the world, and are repulsed by strangers, forgotten by friends, we grow more and more timid in our approaches even to those we love best. How delightful to us are the little caresses of children! All sincerity, all affection they fly into our arms; and then, and then only, we feel our first confidence, our first pleasure.

MARRIAGE.—A man who passes through life without marrying is like a fair mansion left by the builder unfinished. The half that is completed runs to decay from neglect, or becomes at best but a sorry tenement, wanting the addition of that which makes the world useful.

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION.
Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle.

THE following letter was received too late for insertion last week.

PHILADELPHIA, August 29th, 1871.

COL. W. W. BROWN; Dear Sir:—Contract let from 36 to 44 inclusive to D. H. Lotz, of Pottsville, from 45 to 56 to Messrs Vandyke & Jas. Moore. Work to commence as soon as possible and put through with vigor. Yours,

R. H. DUNCAN.

With the letter Mr. Duncan, sent us a circular dated at the office of the Denver and Rio Grande R. R. Co. It advocates the narrow guage road, in an earnest and able manner.

We quote the following in regard to Stock cars:

No stock cars have as yet been built, but our plans give a car space 2 by 8 feet per animal, with conveniences for watering and feeding in transit, with a car weight of about 800 pounds per animal. The cattle stand parallel to the direction of the train, resisting any tendency to throw them down or bruise them, forming by far the most humane mode of transit.

In the stock cars at present used on broad guages, the animals have but 1 ft. 8 inches by 8 feet space, without any practicable means of feeding or watering; are placed across the line of car motion in a helpless position; while, even with these disadvantages, the car weight is from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds per animal.

Loughry, Ed.

Persons inquiring for letters in the above list, will please say they are advertised. J. T. JOHNSON, P. M.

IT has been frequently remarked by intelligent and observing foreigners that the newness and mushroon like appearance of our American towns, first attract the attention of a stranger.

We seem to lack that air of durability and antiquity, which is characteristic of European cities, Bellefonte we are happy to tell you is a notable exception.

There is an atmosphere of quiet yet persistent permanency about her buildings that is extremely musical, and correspondingly refreshing to the contemplative eye.

No one sentiment of the human heart is probably so commendable as respect for age. This is true as well of inanimate as animated things, but perhaps in a less degree, an American who first beholds the time worn tower, and embattled turrets of some old English castle, is filled with lofty sentiments and a pleasing holy reverence, for the mere antiquity of the place, and he leaves the scene of such reflection with expanded mind and a more comprehensive view of life. But what need of going to foreign lands, when we have equally soul stirring views at our very door?

As we allow our appreciative vision to wander away from exchanges, and clippings of news and ledgers, accounts and statements, out through the window of our sanctum, all the admiration, enthusiasm and ennobling sentiments within us, swells up like the gentle heart of some angeliferous maiden, receiving the first declaration of love, from an admiring swain, as we gaze upon a time stained and fire-scared monument of by gone days! A high stone wall like some huge cliff that lifts its awful form, swells from the vale and midway leaves the storm. We will not contend that it is fair proportioned, handsome or an elegant relic of former splendor, but it is aged, bears on its front the impress of many revolving years, and hence should be carefully watched and warded, to be looked up to with wonderment, reverence and feelings akin to awe. The lapse of time is beginning to make inroads upon its strength and durability.

Some day, possibly, before another month, shall be wound off to "take its place with the still lapse of ages," it may, with all its historic dignity fall before the autumnal blasts, a mass of shapeless ruin, and then "another landmark sure is gone."

By some strange casualty it might fall upon and quietly spread out the group of innocent prattling children, we see playing beneath its protecting shadow, such an episode could not fail to be depressing to the mind, but little moment, of course, in comparison with the value of the precious relic, which now stands an object for the culture of reverential and ennobling sentiments, in the breasts of the rising generation. In view of the possibility of its yielding to the incessant attacks of the envious elements, we would respectfully suggest, that a committee of prominent citizens be appointed to place the ruins in good condition, tor instance, erect an iron fence around it, a few supports and braces to keep its massive proportions in place, and a substantial roof to ward off the rain and prevent the crumbling stones from being precipitated from their lofty height, to the mother earth below.

"Woodman spare that tree."

BELLEFONTE, her institutions, men and customs are becoming notorious.

Not satisfied with the quibbling local, unenviable fame of her sister towns, she aims to make for herself a reputation and name that will reach beyond the limits of the commonwealth, aye even to the uttermost ends of the earth.

In this worthy enterprise of winning reputation, she has to a creditable extent succeeded.

The classic shades of her aristocratic streets, the dignified footfalls of her pedestrians, her mammoth spring of water, at whose side the gifted Talyrand sat while courting the muse (if you don't believe it, the stone whereon he sat is there yet) her hotels, palatial residences, high-toned entertainments, gifted barristers, christian associations, first class fires and corresponding fire companies, all these have a distinct individuality of which her citizens feel proud.

To illustrate; only a few days since we had the pleasure of meeting the oldest son of one of the Siamese Twins. Those far-seeing, and friendly brothers, although having as much paternal love for their offspring as they have attachment for each other, concluded to send this offshoot to America, there to complete his education. They knew of but one institution on the continent, the Bellefonte Academy, and here they sent him. His keeper informed some one, who told us that he is the son of the left handed twin, that is to say the one who sleeps on the left hand side of the bed, when the head board faces the north. His name as we took it down is Ching Um Lingo Chug. In the interval preceding the opening of school he spends the time catching rats and mice, which he manifests a great fondness for rare. He also shows a preference for grasshoppers prepared in much the same way. We understand that the Chairman of the Democratic county committee, has been appointed his guardian and that he will be educated at the expense of the Y. M. C. A.

Reported for the REPUBLICAN.

MASS MEETING.

A meeting of the Republicans of Centre county, was held in the Court House on Wednesday evening las, Aug. 30th.

The Republican County Convention held in the afternoon of the same day, brought good delegations from all parts of the county, making it one of the largest meetings ever held in Bellefonte. W. P. Wilson was chosen President, with Messrs. Henry M'Ewen of Walker, John Daily of Curtin, Thaddeus Brew of Bellefonte, William R. Fulton of Philipsburg and John R. Tate of Spring township, as Vice Presidents. The Unionville Drum Corps was in attendance and furnished excellent Republican music.

The Chairman introduced Col. A. R. Calhoun of Philadelphia, who in a clear, classical, forcible manner reviewed the issues pending on the coming election. Col. Calhoun it will be remembered is commander of the G. A. R. of Pennsylvania. He was a gallant soldier, his many scars and loss of a leg attest his bravery and the enthusiastic reception of his eloquent effort was strong proof of the fact that he speaks as well as he fought.

Col. W. W. Brown was called for, but was not in the audience. Loud calls were then made for J. G. Love, Esq. Mr. Love reviewed the ticket placed in nomination by the convention showing it to be unexceptionable and bound to win. The points made (we should say attempted) by McCandless and Orvis the previous evening, were taken up and ventilated in good style.

A brief history of the Democratic style of manipulating the county finances, Meeks forgery of the Lytle—Chambers letter, and his unmanly, contemptible but successful method of securing his own nomination, showed the county to be in a disgraceful financial condition and the Democratic party badly disorganized, and so much disgusted with Meek, as to be willing to vomit him out of the party.

We are glad these facts were laid so plainly and fairly before the people. Every tax-payer in the county should know that, there are some SIXTY defaulting tax collectors in the county; that Meek did accept and receive bribes for his vote in the legislature during every session he represented this county; that he is indictable for the forgery of the Lytle—Chambers letter; that he boasts of having placed every name on the Democratic slate of the county.

How about the disappointed victims? The "Ring" has endeavored to heal over the bad bitter feeling very ingeniously, to wit: Meek defeated Orvis, but the Ring brought him out for the Legislature next year, in his speech in the Court House on Tuesday evening the 29th ult, thereby trying to close the eye of the unterrified from the rural districts. Meek nominated Potter, and the innocent victim is now spending his brains, time and money, none of which he can well spare, as Chairman of the Democratic County Committee. Meek victimized Isaac Lytle, to secure his own nomination and is now the only political friend that Lytle can tack to in either party.

The recapitulation is easy: Meek has sacrificed his party, his friends and his reputation to secure the gratification of his own selfish ambition. Will honest Democrats vote for him? We will see.

After a few remarks from Captain Story, of Philadelphia, the following resolutions were adopted and the meeting adjourned.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the action of our recent State Convention, in placing before the people for their suffrages, Col. David Stanton for Auditor General, and Col. Robert B. Beath, for Surveyor General, and that we hereby pledge them our undivided and hearty support.

Resolved, That the platform of principles adopted by said Convention, meets with our most earnest approval.

Resolved, That the county ticket, this day placed in nomination by our County Convention, is worthy the support of all Republicans and honest Democrats, and is heartily endorsed by this meeting.

SERVICES in the Reformed church next Sabbath evening at 7½ o'clock.

A REALLY GOOD INVENTION.—It is very seldom we commend to the public in this way patent improvements and inventions, which belong more properly to our advertising columns. What we have to commend, however, so deeply concerns the health, happiness and comfort of our American women, that we make no apology for giving it our most emphatic approval and endorsement. The invention referred to is the great American Washer, which is claimed to be in every conceivable respect superior to any other "washer" extant. It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most easily operated, and is not at all liable to get out of order. Its construction is so simple, that even a child can be successfully taught to operate in an incredible short space of time.

Some of the most prominent and desirable features in this "washer," which is an inducement in itself, are worthy of especial commendation. They are these: It is always ready for use; there is no adjusting it. Everything seems to have been done that ingenuity could suggest; and in our estimation it is simply a practical, sensible and beautiful invention, and only requires to be seen to be appreciated, which cannot fail to please the taste of the most fastidious.—*Phila. REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

Pursuant to the call made by Chairman Rankin, of the County Committee, the delegates met on Wednesday, Aug. 30th, in Reynolds' hall, to place in nomination the Republican county ticket.

John Irwin, Jr., was called to the Chair.

Capt. W. W. Rodgers, and Dr. J. M. McCoy, were elected secretaries.

Doctor Faust, of Marion, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the interest of every tax-payer in Centre county demand the repeal of the "Law Library" act, and we hereby instruct our candidate for Assembly, if elected, to use to his utmost ability all honorable means to have the said bill repealed and to secure the passage of another bill which will provide that all monies now applied as directed in the "Law Library" act, shall be applied to the free school fund of the townships where the fines are inflicted.

This resolution was unanimously adopted amid great applause.

Nominations were then made for Assembly, with result of first ballot as follows:

A. R. Barlow	14
W. W. Brown	14
James A. Beaver	30
W. R. Fulton	4

As shown, no nomination was made. Col. W. W. Brown coming into the Convention at this point and finding his name mentioned, in a neat well timed speech withdrew his name, pledging himself, his time and his paper to securing the triumphant election of the ticket and the redemption of the county.

James A. Beaver's name was then withdrawn and Col. Robert McFarland, was nominated.

The second ballot resulted as follows:

A. R. Barlow	25
W. R. Fulton	4
Robert McFarland	32
W. W. Brown	5

Notwithstanding Col. Brown's withdrawal he received five votes.

Before the third ballot was taken W. R. Fulton's name was withdrawn.

THIRD BALLOT.

A. R. Barlow	19
Robert McFarland	46

On motion Col. McFarland's nomination was made unanimous.

The following names were placed in nomination for

ASSOCIATE JUDGES.

Geo. Odenkirk	8
John W. Richards	5
Thomas Hosterman	16
David M. Wagner	58
Benjamin Ligget	40

Messrs. Wagner and Ligget's nomination was made unanimous.

FOR TREASURER,

Geo. A. Bayard was nominated by acclamation.

The ballot for

COMMISSIONER STOOD:

A. J. Swartz	57
David Parsons	5
J. M. Kephart	4

Isaac Lytle was nominated by acclamation for District Attorney, James Glenn, for Auditor and H. P. Trezlyulny, for Surveyor.

The above ticket is unexceptionable and cannot fail to receive the hearty support of every Republican in the county.

The people of Centre county now see how the party stands on the Law Library question.

P. Gray Meek during the canvas made the Library question the great point of difference between his and Orvis' claims to the nomination, but the intelligent Democrats saw his dodge and, about out of resources, his fertile brain suggested the forgery of the Lytle-Chambers letter. Let it be remembered that the democratic convention said not a word about the Law Library.

If the Republican party will do its duty and Democrats will vote intelligently and honestly, the entire ticket will be triumphantly elected.

Let every voter do his duty and victory is sure.

We take pleasure in calling your attention to Young & Devling's large stock of such goods as are kept only in first class general stores. In regard to quality of goods, variety, prices &c., they can not be surpassed in Central Pennsylvania. There goods are obtained mostly from first hands and therefore can save the people from 14 to 20 per cent, on all goods purchased from them. Another advantage to this store is that Mr. Young, the senior partner of the firm is in the wholesale business in Philadelphia, where he remains part of the year, thus enabling the people to obtain anything they may want in the merchandise line.

RANKIN sells School Books lower than any one else.

CALL AND SEE.—A pleasant Gap correspondent, writes that he found a tomato stalk in a garden there, that was 12 feet 4 inches high and we suppose it makes quite a pleasant shade tree, and like Mark Twain's pumpkin vine, we advise him to climb the tree to pick the fruit. No affidavit accompanied the report, so we advise our friends to take it cum grano salis. If any body doubts this they may refer to Jacob D. Miller, who resides there and keeps the best store outside of Bellefonte. We will furnish all affidavits necessary to prove to the public that Jacob is a live, enterprising man and will sell goods cheaper than the cheapest.

Patrick Murphy, a native of Ireland, died in Derry twp., Westmoreland Co., recently, aged 116 years.

MORE SNAKES.—We published two weeks ago an account of a wholesale massacre of snakes in the lower end of the County.

Several of our exchanges doubted its authenticity but if they will call at the REPUBLICAN office we can furnish proof enough to satisfy the most dubious inquirer.

We are now going to relate another snake story, and will premise with the requests that all, who have the merest shadow of a doubt as to its authenticity, will do us a favor by calling and examining the statement made by the hero of the story and the corroborating evidence of several witnesses, all responsible men.

James Heverly, Jr., resides near Howard. One day last week while passing through a clover field in the rear of his house, he was attracted to a fence corner by the loud barking of his dog. On approaching, he observed two large black snakes with heads erect, glittering eyes and projecting tongues menacingly gliding around after the dog.

It was but the work of a moment to dispatch them, but they were still squerming when glancing a rod or two from the spot he observed a huge coil of black, grey, hellish looking snakes. He was completely dumbfounded, then incessant squerming, coiling and recoiling, then frightful contortions, and the odor emited were horrifying and sickening in the extreme. He fled to the house for assistance. Returning with several men all armed with clubs and axes they set to work chopping to pieces the bowing coil of reptiles. Here was a scene worthy the pen of an Aadison! Several snakes would dart off, as if trying to evade the doom of their companions, when the unerring strokes of the axes would sever their bodies. Then another large flat headed green eyed monster would make a lunge at the descending ax, only to fall back and share the fate of his companion snake.

But the axmen kept on in their work of destruction until, as with a common impulse, the snakes made a rush for the field, one of the witnesses said the ground was literally alive with them, darting here and there, in every direction, many were killed while many more fled unharmed, but on this one spot covering an area of perhaps two rods square, were counted fifty one dead snakes. Nor did the men leave the field until the astonishing number of one hundred and nineteen snakes had been made to bite the dust.

We quietly remark that this is a good year for snakes! We have one more snake story in reserve, we will relate it in our issue following the second Tuesday of October. It is all about the massacre of a large den of Copperheads.

ANOTHER expose of Democratic trickery and deliberate falsehood comes to us from the columns of the Bellefonte Republican. This time it is a political leach who filled with the public pap had fallen off as a natural result, but desiring to fill up again, proceeds to attach himself after the usual style of that ilk.

Mr. Peter Gray Meek in his endeavors to work his way again into office, found his course rather a hard road to travel, with but little prospect of success. He thereupon circulated among "the faithful" a certain letter, purporting to be written by Capt. Isaac Lytle, Secretary of the Republican County Committee, to a Mr. James Chambers, a brother Republican, and a gentleman, according to our authority, of the highest standing in his political and personal character. This letter, while written apparently in the interest of a Mr. J. H. Orvis, was really a damaging thing to him and correspondingly in favor of this man Meek. This stab in the dark did its work, as all slander will in any community; but now it turns out to be a bare-faced fraud and forgery. Capt. Lytle and Mr. Chambers both deny emphatically ever writing or receiving any such letter.

Capt. Lytle further states that as soon as the matter came to his knowledge he called upon the said Peter, who acknowledged and confessed to him that he, Meek, wrote the letter himself, while in Millheim, and knowing Capt. Lytle to be a personal friend attached his name thereto, and at the same time begged Lytle not to expose him.

This is the substance of the base calumny and slander, in brief, and enough it is, one would think, to make Meek blush for his honor and manhood, if he has any left.

We learn from the same source that the matter has created a strong feeling of antipathy against the author of the outrage among the honorable men of his party, and they are determined to see the bottom of the affair. Quote to them, for us, friend Republican, the old adage that "Truth lies at the bottom of the well," but we fear this one is so choked up with weeds and all manner of filthiness, that their labor, as far as cleansing Mr. Meek goes, will have but poor results.

However, it is not our funeral—let them fight it out in their own way, so that right comes to the top. We see a prospect ahead in Centre county for a modern application of the "Kilkenny Cats."—Wyoming Valley Journal.

COMMUNION WINE.—We have been shown specimens of sacramental or pure juice wine, prepared by Mr. Alfred Speer of Passaic, N. J., out of the Port Grape, which he cultivates in this country. In taste it assimilates to port, without its heating qualities, being absolutely free from spirits further than its own fermentation affords. Preference is given to it over all other wines in New York and other hospitals as a tonic, gentle stimulant, diuretic and sudorific. Mr. Speer has been nine years experimenting in the production of this wine, and the newest wine he sells is four years old, of which our druggists have got in a supply.

CHEMISTRY is furnishing us new agents for fuel, force, food, and many other important aids over those we once possessed. Ports from which commerce was driven during the hot months by their terrible fevers are visited all the year with impunity now. Many localities in the South and West kept tenantless by their deleterious miasmas are now filling up with populations under the protection of Ayer's Ague Cure. Their afflicting Chills and Fever are so effectually cured by this remedy that the disease no longer turns emigration aside or destroys the settler if he ventures upon its infected districts. And still another for $14,000, eight years, in which to make the payments. For further particulars inquire at the REPUBLICAN office. v3n27-ts.
